

Abstract

A system and method for translating languages using an intermediate content space is provided. Content included in a language stream expressed in a first language is transformed into corresponding content expressed in a second language by transforming the content included in the language stream expressed in the first language into intermediate content in a content space, and transforming said intermediate content in the content space into the corresponding content expressed in the second language. In one embodiment, the content space is language agnostic.

RES 109629v1